

2010-11

74

34

11

10

11

10

provides power, from the specialised areas of power management and telecommunications to electrical engineering to meet the growing demands of electronics and of the energy industry.

Professionals in this field

manage the production of industry

s will be in current and e insight into the energy policies

graduate students market being escape their control to gain

convert The dynamic learning for excellent student stability of This will enable more students would be able to able to achieve and concepts into process involve various interaction and dialogues because they oversee the from a theory